PESTICIDE ACT 1999

Order Issued by Environment Protection Authority
under Section 115

THE following exemption is granted by the Environment Protection Authority (Authority) in accordance with section 115 of the Pesticide Act 1999. Section 115 of the Act provides that the Authority may exempt a person or class of persons from a specified provision of the Act or Regulations under the Act. The Board of the Authority approves the granting of the exemption.

Dated 17 July 2013.

BARRY BUFFIER,
Chair and CEO

PESTICIDES ACT 1999

Order Granting Conditional Exemption
under Section 115

Background

- I. The Civil Aviation Act 1988 (Cth) regulates the safety of civil aviation in Australia and establishes the Civil Aviation Safety Authority (CASA). Regulation of civil aviation is covered in Division 2 of Part III of the Act and Part 101 of the Civil Aviation Safety Regulations 1998 (Cth) for Unmanned Aircraft and Rockets.
- II. The NSW Pesticides Act 1999 and Pesticide Regulation 2009 require that aircraft businesses and pilots that aurally apply pesticides must each obtain separate licences from the Authority. The regulations prescribe separate qualifications for each licence. The Act also requires aircraft to be approved by CASA for aerial spray equipment in agricultural operations.

- III. Yamaha Motor Australia Pty Ltd (ACN 002 556 989) (Yamaha) has approached CASA, the Authority and pesticide regulatory agencies in other States to obtain permission to operate unmanned RMAX helicopters in Australia to aurally apply pesticides.

CASA Operator (Business) Certificates and Controller (Pilot) Certificates

- IV. CASA can authorise Unmanned Aerial Vehicles (UAVs) to conduct aerial work and may attach conditions. Because of its proposed commercial use, the RMAX is classed by CASA as a Remotely Piloted Aircraft (RPA).
- V. To operate a commercial RPA business in Australia, CASA requires each operator (or aircraft businesses) to obtain an Unmanned Operators Certificate (UOC) under clause 101.335 of the Civil Aviation Safety Regulations 1998. The Commonwealth requires each operator and each franchise or subsidiary to have separate certification and each controller (or pilot) to have separate certification. This is similar to the NSW pesticide requirement to hold separate aircraft and pilot licences.
- VI. CASA has issued a UAV Operator Certificate to Yamaha which allows them to carry out aerial work with their RMAX helicopters. UOCs are also expected to be issued to Yamaha franchisees.
- VII. In accordance with clause 101.340 of the Civil Aviation Safety Regulations 1998 conditions have been placed on these UAV Operator Certificates to ensure that the applicants have met conditions specific to the use of the RMAX units to apply pesticides aurally.
- VIII. Various Yamaha staff and franchisee staff have or will be issued with a UAV Controller Certificate under clause 101.295 of the Civil Aviation Safety Regulations 1998 which allows them to use their RMAX helicopters for aerial work.

NSW Aircraft and Pilot Licences to aurally apply pesticides

- IX. Section 45 of the Pesticides Act 1999 requires a Pilot (Pesticides Rating) Licence and an Aircraft (Pesticide Applicator) licence.
- X. Clause 6 of the Pesticides Regulations 2009 prescribes relevant qualifications that applicants must hold under the Civil Aviation Act 1988 (Cth) in order to be granted either a Pilot (Pesticides Rating) Licence or an Aircraft (Pesticide Applicator) Licence. These training requirements are appropriate for manned aircraft.
- XI. As the prescribed qualification requirements for a Pilot (Pesticide Rating) Licence and an Aircraft (Pesticide Applicator) licence specified in the Act and Regulation are not consistent with those that CASA has deemed appropriate for the use of the RMAX Units, the Authority cannot currently issue aerial licences to Yamaha, its franchisees, staff and other CASA authorised businesses or individuals in respect of the use of RMAX Units for applying pesticides.
- XII. Section 48 of the Pesticides Act 1999 allows the Authority to refuse to grant a Pilot (Pesticides Rating) Licence or an Aircraft (Pesticide Applicator) licence if the applicant does not hold the qualifications prescribed by the regulations. However, the Authority intends that both the business and pilots using UAVs for applying pesticides be required to be licensed in NSW but only be required to hold the UAV qualification as specified by CASA and not the requirements for manned aircraft.

PESTICIDES ACT 1999

Order Granting Conditional Exemption
under Section 115

Background

- I. The Civil Aviation Act 1988 (Cth) regulates the safety of civil aviation in Australia and establishes the Civil Aviation Safety Authority (CASA). Regulation of civil aviation is covered in Division 2 of Part III of the Act and Part 101 of the Civil Aviation Safety Regulations 1998 (Cth) for Unmanned Aircraft and Rockets.
- II. The NSW Pesticides Act 1999 and Pesticide Regulation 2009 require that aircraft businesses and pilots that aerially apply pesticides must each obtain separate licences from the Authority. The regulations prescribe separate qualifications for each licence. The Act also requires aircraft to be approved by CASA for aerial spray equipment in agricultural operations.
- III. Yamaha Motor Australia Pty Ltd (ACN 002 556 989) (Yamaha) has approached CASA, the Authority and pesticide regulatory agencies in other States to obtain permission to operate unmanned RMAX helicopters in Australia to aerially apply pesticides.

CASA Operator (Business) Certificates and Controller (Pilot) Certificates

- IV. CASA can authorise Unmanned Aerial Vehicles (UAVs) to conduct aerial work and may attach conditions. Because of its proposed commercial use, the RMAX is classed by CASA as a Remotely Piloted Aircraft (RPA).
- V. To operate a commercial RPA business in Australia, CASA requires each operator (or aircraft businesses) to obtain an Unmanned Operators Certificate (UOC) under clause 101.335 of the Civil Aviation Safety Regulations 1998. The Commonwealth requires each operator and each franchise or subsidiary to have separate certification and each controller (or pilot) to have separate certification. This is similar to the NSW pesticide requirement to hold separate aircraft and pilot licences.
- VI. CASA has issued a UAV Operator Certificate to Yamaha which allows them to carry out aerial work with their RMAX helicopters. UOCs are also expected to be issued to Yamaha franchisees.
- VII. In accordance with clause 101.340 of the Civil Aviation Safety Regulations 1998 conditions have been placed on these UAV Operator Certificates to ensure that the applicants have met conditions specific to the use of the RMAX units to apply pesticides aerially.
- VIII. Various Yamaha staff and franchisee staff have or will be issued with a UAV Controller Certificate under clause 101.295 of the Civil Aviation Safety Regulations 1998 which allows them to use their RMAX helicopters for aerial work.

NSW Aircraft and Pilot Licences to aerially apply pesticides

- IX. Section 45 of the Pesticides Act 1999 requires a Pilot (Pesticides Rating) Licence and an Aircraft (Pesticide Applicator) licence.
- X. Clause 6 of the Pesticides Regulations 2009 prescribes relevant qualifications that applicants must hold under the Civil Aviation Act 1988 (Cth) in order to be granted either a Pilot (Pesticides Rating) Licence or an Aircraft (Pesticide Applicator) Licence. These training requirements are appropriate for manned aircraft.
- XI. As the prescribed qualification requirements for a Pilot (Pesticide Rating) Licence and an Aircraft (Pesticide Applicator) licence specified in the Act and Regulation are not consistent with those that CASA has deemed appropriate for the use of the RMAX Units, the Authority cannot currently issue aerial licences to Yamaha, its franchisees, staff and other CASA authorised businesses or individuals in respect of the use of RMAX Units for applying pesticides.
- XII. Section 48 of the Pesticides Act 1999 allows the Authority to refuse to grant a Pilot (Pesticides Rating) Licence or an Aircraft (Pesticide Applicator) licence if the applicant does not hold the qualifications prescribed by the regulations. However, the Authority intends that both the business and pilots using UAVs for applying pesticides be required to be licensed in NSW but only be required to hold the UAV qualification as specified by CASA and not the requirements for manned aircraft.

- XII. Section 48 of the Pesticides Act 1999 allows the Authority to refuse to grant a Pilot (Pesticides Rating) Licence or an Aircraft (Pesticide Applicator) licence if the applicant does not hold the qualifications prescribed by the regulations. However, the Authority intends that both the business and pilots using UAVs for applying pesticides be required to be licensed in NSW but only be required to hold the UAV qualification as specified by CASA and not the requirements for manned aircraft.

PESTICIDES ACT 1999

Order Granting Conditional Exemption under Section 115

Background

- I. The Civil Aviation Act 1988 (Cth) regulates the safety of civil aviation in Australia and establishes the Civil Aviation Safety Authority (CASA). Regulation of civil aviation is covered in Division 2 of Part III of the Act and Part 101 of the Civil Aviation Safety Regulations 1998 (Cth) for Unmanned Aircraft and Rockets.
- II. The NSW Pesticides Act 1999 and Pesticide Regulation 2009 require that aircraft businesses and pilots that aerially apply pesticides must each obtain separate licences from the Authority. The regulations prescribe separate qualifications for each licence. The Act also requires aircraft to be approved by CASA for aerial spray equipment in agricultural operations.

III. Yamaha Motor Australia Pty Ltd (ACN 002 556 989) (Yamaha) has approached CASA, the Authority and pesticide regulatory agencies in other States to obtain permission to operate unmanned RMAX helicopters in Australia to aerially apply pesticides.

CASA Operator (Business) Certificates and Controller (Pilot) Certificates

IV. CASA can authorise Unmanned Aerial Vehicles (UAVs) to conduct aerial work and may attach conditions. Because of its proposed commercial use, the RMAX is classed by CASA as a Remotely Piloted Aircraft (RPA).

V. To operate a commercial RPA business in Australia, CASA requires each operator (or aircraft businesses) to obtain an Unmanned Operators Certificate (UOC) under clause 101.335 of the Civil Aviation Safety Regulations 1998. The Commonwealth requires each operator and each franchise or subsidiary to have separate certification and each controller (or pilot) to have separate certification. This is similar to the NSW pesticide requirement to hold separate aircraft and pilot licences.

VI. CASA has issued a UAV Operator Certificate to Yamaha which allows them to carry out aerial work with their RMAX helicopters. UOCs are also expected to be issued to Yamaha franchisees.

VII. In accordance with clause 101.340 of the Civil Aviation Safety Regulations 1998 conditions have been placed on these UAV Operator Certificates to ensure that the applicants have met conditions specific to the use of the RMAX units to apply pesticides aerially.

VIII. Various Yamaha staff and franchisee staff have or will be issued with a UAV Controller Certificate under clause 101.295 of the Civil Aviation Safety Regulations 1998 which allows them to use their RMAX helicopters for aerial work.

NSW Aircraft and Pilot Licences to aerially apply pesticides

IX. Section 45 of the Pesticides Act 1999 requires a Pilot (Pesticides Rating) Licence and an Aircraft (Pesticide Applicator) licence.

X. Clause 6 of the Pesticides Regulations 2009 prescribes relevant qualifications that applicants must hold under the Civil Aviation Act 1988 (Cth) in order to be granted either a Pilot (Pesticides Rating) Licence or an Aircraft (Pesticide Applicator) Licence. These training requirements are appropriate for manned aircraft.

XI. As the prescribed qualification requirements for a Pilot (Pesticide Rating) Licence and an Aircraft (Pesticide Applicator) licence specified in the Act and Regulation are not consistent with those that CASA has deemed appropriate for the use of the RMAX Units, the Authority cannot currently issue aerial licences to Yamaha, its franchisees, staff and other CASA authorised businesses or individuals in respect of the use of RMAX Units for applying pesticides.

XII. Section 48 of the Pesticides Act 1999 allows the Authority to refuse to grant a Pilot (Pesticides Rating) Licence or an Aircraft (Pesticide Applicator) licence if the applicant does not hold the qualifications prescribed by the regulations. However, the Authority intends that both the business and pilots using UAVs for applying pesticides be required to be licensed in NSW but only be required to hold the UAV qualification as specified by CASA and not the requirements for manned aircraft.

XIII. On 17 July 2013 the Board of the Authority approved the granting of the exemption, subject to conditions outlined in the Exemption Order below.

XIV. Other parties that seek to undertake a similar activity in the future will also be covered by this exemption, provided that all the relevant conditions are met.
